Whereupon,

L. FLETCHER POURTY

called for interview by Counsel for the President's Commission on CIA Activities, having been first duly sworn by the Notary Public, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY COUNSEL FOR THE COMMISSION

BY MR. GRAY:

Q Sir, would you state your full name for the record?

A. My name is L. Fletcher Pourty.

Q And you are a retired Air Force Colonel, who for a substantial period of time, and particularly around the late 1950's and early 1960's served as a CIA appointed liaison with the Air Force with certain support of a paramilitary nature is that correct?

A. But it should be the other way around, I serves as an Air Force officer in support of CIA, I was in the Air Force.

Q And your office was in the Air Force?

A. Yes, my office was in the Pentagon, in the Air Force.

Q Before the reporter arrived you told me that in December 1959 or January 1960 or possibly as late as February 1960, you were approached by the Air Division of the Covert Action Staff of the CIA, who said they had a special job requiring Air Force support, and they wanted an L-28, is that correct?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And I don't think I can repeat what you explained to 3 me about the L-28, so maybe you had better repeat that.

4 A The L-28 was a special single engine plane that had 5 been purched by the CIA called the Helio Courier. The Air
6 Force owned a number of these air craft. So we provided
7 cover for CIA by giving them Air Force insignia and Air Force 8 designation, the L-28, and Air Force serial numbers. And these 9 aircraft, or at least some of them, were based at Eglin Air
10 Force Base in Florida. They were at Eglin Air Force Base 11 because that is where the CIA kept most of its aircraft in the 12 country.

13 Q And how was this mission originally described to you?

14 A Originally it was one of a number of missions that we 15 were operating over a period of time. But it was one of the 16 few that we operated with L-28's. The people who came over 17 from the Air Division stated that they had a place to land the 18 plane in Cuba on a road, on a small road, and they had a photo-19 graph of it. And they were going to let two men out there and 20 then fly the plane back with a pilot and copilot to Eglin Air 21 Force Base. And the men that were being left off would be 22 equipped with a high powered rifle and a telescopic sight.
23 They were Cubans. We never saw them, of course. This is what 24 we were told they were, because we didn 't interfere with who 25 was on the plane, we simply put the plane in the air. But this

1 was a normal procedure. And the object of their mission in 2 Cuba was to go to a building in Havana where one of the men 3 knew his way around and was pretty sure that he could get into,
4 and if possible, he would shoot Castro.

5 Q Did you recall who told you this?

6 A No, I don't, because we were working every day with 7 these people. And I think if you had a listing of the Air
8 Division staff at that date I probably could tell you it was one 9 of four men, something like that, a Division of maybe 30 men, 10 it would have been one of three or four, or two of three or four.
11 The thing was, we were doing these things every day, it was not 12 an odd thing that came up, it was something that we were doing 13 quite regularly.

14 Q It surprises me that the CIA would describe the 15 mission to you in this much detail, it doesn't seem consistent 16 with compartmentation and need-to-know particularly in view of 17 the sensitive nature of the mission.

18 A That is an awfully good point you are making. In 19 those days it did, because the more urgent part of my job was 20 to brief my boss, the Chief of Staff, Air Force, and through 21 him the Secretary, Air Force, or the Secretary of Defense, 22 or whoever, as required.

23 Q Let's go off the record for a minute.

24 (Discussion off the record.)

25 MR. GRAY: Back on the record.

1 THE WITNESS: And since that was a real serious respon-
2 sibility, we wouldn't fly the mission unless we knew that it
3 had the approval of the Security Council, or that at least 4 the overall program had approval of the Security Council. And 5 this was understood for years. We had no problem with that at 6 all. I don't think that I ever sent out a mission that we 7 didn't know what they were going to do and where they were 8 going. And this seems, at least in certain applications, to 9 have ceased in this day and age. But I think that is due to 10 other things. But in 1959-60 we would know where it was going - 11 even to the point that I would want to know when they came back, 12 I would really want to know if they went where they told me.
13 We were pretty sure about how we did it.

14 BY MR. GRAY:

15 Q Do you recall briefing the Chief of Staff or any of your 16 other superiors on this mission?

17 A Yes. My usual arrangement was to brief the Director 18 of Plans, the Major General who was my immediate boss.

19 Q Did you remember who that was at that time?

20 A In 1959 I would say that was General Cary, or possibly 21 General Martin. Again, it is a question of who was where at 22 that time. But I think if we put those two names down we will 23 be awfully close to it.

24 Q Was this mission concerned at all as to the proprietary 25 or morality or whatever? Did thoughts of that nature concern you when you heard it?

1 A. The concern that we would have was that the military 2 would not be involved. We just wouldn't participate in it.
3 And actually the CIA had the same idea at that time. What we were 4 doing was helping Cubans. And if the Cubans, with their own 5 little command structure, wanted to operate and could, you 6 might say, convince CIA that this was something that was important 7 to them, or that they thought they could achieve, on their 8 own, if we would just give them so much as a little help, the 9 missions would be sent. As a result, we didn't concern ourselves 10 with too many of them, for the simple reason, we weren't asked 11 for. It was almost like mechanics, you know. There were 12 missions that we turned down, but mostly because we thought 13 they wouldn't succeed or that we would not be able -- the 14 favorite phrase -- to disclaim plausibly that the military or the 15 Government of the U.S. was involved. And we were serious about 16 that business in those days.

17 Q. Did you recall anyone else that you briefed on this 18 raising any questions about this particular mission?

19 A. No, with no, what you might say barriers to the 20 operation, with everything cleared and laid on in a perfectly 21 normal manner, we got on with other business. We knew right
22 away that it didn't succeed -- I say right away, within 10 23 days -- and there were so many other things going on, it was on 24 with the rest of it.

25 Q. Did you ever hear what happened to interrupt the 1 plans?

2 A. I don't think I have a clear memory about it. But 3 all of us in that business kind of felt that most of those 4 Cubans were not able to do what they thought they could do.
5 Castro was operating the bloc system, and I think it was a 6 lot more effective than we gave him credit for.

7 Q. How are you able to place a time as to December 1959 8 or January 1960 or February 1960? Why are you sure it is in 9 that two- or three-month period.

10 A. I will tell you why that is pretty easy to figure.
11 The Agency wasn't running what I would call hard missions until 12 late in 1959. You know Castro came in at the beginning of 1959.
13 And things didn't really jell until later in the year. And 14 a good reason for that, the training of Cuban exiles hadn't 15 produced really professionals in terms of pilots or drop teams
16 or saboteurs or what have until after they had had quite a bit
17 of training. At the other end of the calendar, General Eisenhower 18 had made it very clear to all of us who were operating over-19 flights that nothing was to be done. A little later in 1960
20 when he was supposed to meet at the summit with Khrushchchev 21 and other world leaders, we halted every overflight. And to 22 this day I can't understand why the U-2 went out. But all the 23 flights that I had anything to do with, the Tibetan flight, the 24 Laotian flights, the Cuban flights, all of that overflight 25 program we halted on direct orders. And since the meeting in

1 Paris was scheduled for May 1, I doubt if we flew anything 2 after March 15, or even maybe March 1, because there would 3 be no interference with it. So I can put it between those 4 dates without any trouble.

5 Q You said at times it was a matter of concern to make 6 sure that the operations you had requested to support, or at 7 least the type of operation, had been approved by the National 8 Security Council, or whoever else was required. Did you recall 9 when you made any such inquiries in this case?

10 A The way we would work that is, having briefed, you 11 might say, the Air Force chain of command, if I was not told 12 to stop, it was gone. Again, it was a matter of working with 13 people that I had been with for years. It wasn't one kind.
14 They knew me, they knew the program. And if I briefed them 15 and there was nothing to interfere within a day or two, we 16 would go. Now, sometimes they would want additional briefings.
17 But I don't remember one in this case.

18 Q I believe at some point one of the news coverages
19 had the name of one of the Cubans involved.

20 A I don't put much story in that. I looked up some 21 notes that I thought might be pertinent, but I don't -- we 22 didn't work with the Cubans -- there were a few Cubans we got 23 to know, like Artemo, but they were not involved in this kind 24 of operation.

25 Q Did you ever get a project name for this, or is there

1 anything that you can suggest, in other words, that we can go
2 to the Agency indices to try to track down the paperwork behind 3 it if any.

4 A. No. You see our overall project was called TAB-6.
5 That was the code, an international code, Agency and military.
6 And if we called it TAB-6, just like a TAB-7 or TAB-3 in a lot
7 of documents, people all over the world knew that TAB-6 was a 8 certain type program. And most of the time when it was like 9 this, pure mechanical program, we would just continue calling 10 it TAB-6, maybe with a date and an airplane number, but 11 nothing else. Now, sometimes a program would be broken off 12 TAB-6, and we would have a separate code number. This was just 13 an ordinary flight.

14 Q. You say the use of the L-28 was fairly rare. Would 15 there be any Air Force records which would enable us to pin 16 down any flight this war or pin it down to one of a few, some-17 thing like that?

18 A. Well, there were two things I think you would find.
19 We usually went to elaborate detail to cover the flight. For 20 example, if a plane leaves and is not in the air -- if it doesn't 21 land it is presumed lost. Now, we would put another plane in 22 the air to cover it, one with the actual numbers of the one 23 that was supposed to be in the air. We would put that one in 24 the air from some field where nobody knew it took off. And 25 if the one would pick up the flight, come in and land, so that

1 control towers, air tarffic controllers could show a record of 2 a plane coming in.

3 Now, this was normal procedure for the people at Eglin,
4 whether the plane was going to Guatemala, or Nicaragua, anything 5 what we called black flight would be covered that way.

6 Q I would presume that you have got a record of those,
7 or that it could be available?

8 A Now, sometimes when the crew would, say, be mercenaries 9 like Air America, they would just take off. And they knew we 10 had them covered in Air Defense Command. And there would be 11 no record at all, nothing, they wouldn't tell anybody where 12 they were going. We would have to see what Eglin had on its 13 record. But I would think, my personal view would be that they 14 ran this very professionally, and you will find there was a 15 flight.

16 Q Would that be preserved after 15 years, or be 17 destroyed?

18 A I say there are two sides of this. The man in the tower 19 at Eglin would just know plane number 1, 2 or 3 was left, and 20 I think it would be dropped from the book with the others, and 21 I think the law requires 90 days or something like that. The 22 other thing is, the Air Defense Command would have a record, 23 because it is harder to tell the Air Defense Command not to go 24 after a bogey in the sky than to have them go. But again, 25 15 years is a long record.

1 Q What about on the Agency's side, would you be familiar
2 enough with their records and records-keeping processes to offer
3 any guidance as to how we might try to run this down.

4 A Well, the Cuban program was a big program that had 5 general approval so long as only Cubans were involved. And up 6 to the point that the Agency was involved, I think you would 7 find them very professional, I think you would find that 8 they have records. But to say what happened after it left the 9 Agency control, then I don't think there would be a record.
10 That is the base program. And of course, I imagine you have 11 heard that from other people too, that you have got to disclaim 12 plausibly. We went so far as to take the decals off the motors, 13 to take the decals off all the engine parts, to take all the 14 American language fuels classification symbols, or whatever, 15 so that the plane was what we call sanitized. Now, if that 16 plane went down, everybody would just disclaim entirely that 17 they had ever even heard of it anywhere. Which means that you 18 don't have any records anywhere, not even the airplane. That 19 is the kind of mission the thing was.

20 Q But the pilots would normally at least have been Agency
21 people, and not Cubans, is that right?

22 A In this instance they would be either Agency contract
23 employees -- not Agency full-time employees, but contract 24 employees, or Cubans, because that is what we were doing in 25 Guatemala, we were training them. You would find either one.

1 But in either case they would have been people flying, you
2 might say, under Agency supervision. We never knew what 3 nationality they were, whether they were like Air American 4 pilots, of indeterminate nationality, or whether they were Cubans 5 I would presume, if I look back at it, since the L-28 was very 6 easy to fly, that it was a Cuban crew.

7 Q. Is there anything else you can think of that would 8 give us more lead on running this down, either through the 9 Agency or through the Air Force or some other suitable source ?

10 A. I have been looking through the New York Times
11 micro film. I have a little flickering memory that there was a 12 little announcement from Havana. I must admit that it was only 13 a light recollection, and I have been trying to find it in the 14 New York Times micro film myself since I talked with Dan Shore.
15 To date I haven't found it. But that kind of thing -- Havana 16 used to blaze every time they got one of those. And that was 17 one way we knew how far they got sometimes.

18 Q. If you find that, would let me know?

19 A. I certainly will.

20 Q. Aside from this instance, was there any other similar 21 operation, Agency operation that you knew of, similar to the 22 one that appeared to be designed to assassinate a foreign 23 leader or support an assassination attempt upon a foreign 24 leader?

25 A. Well, I don't know how deep you go into these subjects.

1 But I know what you might call the anatomy of an assassination
2 doesn't begin with the assassination. If you can remove the 3 government or assist people who are probably going to remove 4 it inevitably, a successful one, and not assassination -- there 5 are a number of those called coup d'états. There were quite 6 a few of those things where, for many reasons, the Agency would 7 be keeping in touch with a group who were not in power, but 8 who, with the run of events, or with a little assistance, or 9 even in some cases up to the point where if the man doesn't 10 leave he may be killed -- he doesn't have much choice -- sure, 11 the Agency was involved in that, there has been a record of 12 that for years.

13 Q What specific one do you have in mind?

14 A I think one that is pretty clear is that over a period
15 of time the Agency worked rather diligently with General Rene
16 Barrientos in Bolivia when he made his move. Dr. Victor Paz 17 Estenssoro, who was President of Bolivia left. So there was 18 no assassination, he took over.

19 The Agency for a long time had worked with Barrientos.
20 Now, I doubt if the Agency ever got to the point with any of 21 them where they said, if he doesn't go by tomorrow we will have 22 to shoot that guy, because events roll up, you see.

23 Another case where this kind of development took place 24 was one removed from Trujillo -- I believe Trujillo was 25 followed by Juan Boscit -- it might have been Bleager -- but I

1 think Juan Bosch. Juan Bosch, I recollect, was replaced by 2 Donald Reid Kabaral. Now, Kabaral was in my office in the 3 Pentagon at about 7:00 o'clock in the evening the day before
4 he became President of the Dominican Republic. Now, the only 5 reason he was there was because somebody in the Agency sent him
6 there. And we gave him a little bit of help that he needed.
7 He took an Eastern Airlines plane out of Washington for San 8 Juan that night, I think at 8:30, and transferred out of San 9 Juan for Santo Domingo. The change of government took place
10 that night, and he was the President of the Dominican 11 Republic the next day. And nobody was killed.

12 But that is really -- you know, the Agency can say, 13 and the government can say, that an assassination is not our 14 business. An assassination is when everything else fails.

15 Or like in the case of Diem, the President of South 16 Vietnam, where the government went to every extreme to persuade 17 him and his brother to go to Europe. Madame Nhu was already 18 in Europe. And they had brought tickets or arranged his flight 19 to Europe, and they had arranged for him to make a speech and 20 all that. But he didn't go. Well, what happens when you expose 21 the palace guard like that, they all know that thousands of 22 people hate them. Any palace guard is hated in most cases.
23 And they leave, they run for their own lives. And so when Mr.
24 Diem came back to the palace there was nobody there to protect 25 him. He made a mistake. And when he realized that he went in the

1 tunnel, and they found him at the other end of the tunnel, and 2 he was killed. There was no assassination plan. All that talk 3 about the assassination of Diem is by people who don't know the 4 inside. There was no assassination of Diem. But there was a 5 removal of Diem. And when it didn't work he got assassinated
6 by others. And that was, I think, the reasonably spontaneous.

7 Once another government knows that the support of the 8 CIA, or the support of this government, is being removed, then 9 many, many people are exposed, and they begin to run. Just as 10 we saw in Saigon. And if they don't run, they get killed.

11 So where a lot of people make a mistake is -- and I 12 worked on so darned many of these -- is that you don't start with 13 a plan to assassinate, that is what is wrong, that is why the 14 Agency says, no, we don't do that. Now, in that fine sense, I
15 could agree with the Agency. But all the rest of the machinery
16 is there. And it gives the people on the outside the initiative 17 to go further. And a lot of time the initiative improves the 18 gun and the bullets after everything else. Assassination has to 19 be treated wisely, or it becomes complete aberration.

20 MR. GRAY: We will conclude here.
